

*Mary Margaret Hunt's TESTPREP
News Briefs
January 2012*

Junior Class

Juniors, your test scores, now and in the future, will determine which college and university you can attend. Do not overlook the equal importance of taking both tests. Secrets to your College Acceptance and Scholarship Opportunities are in the seminars. Select your testing dates for both tests and make it a priority to attend the college of your choice. Sharpen your Skills!

In preparation for the testing dates, I will again offer seminars in the Waco area prior to each test date for the (P)SAT / ACT tests, emphasizing the best approach to each test using the esteemed Elissa Sommerfield Curriculum. Mrs. Sommerfield's experience in developing her material includes thirty-five years of conducting review classes in Dallas for the college boards. Our program has proven results and is known as "Texas's Oldest and Finest".

Sophomore Class

The National Merit Scholar Qualifying Test—PSAT Test—is scheduled on October 11, 2012. Begin to build your skills. I recommend that you do not wait until September to begin to prepare.

Because PSAT test scores are huge indicators and alert colleges and universities, I urge students to start early! I am aware of the immediate need for additional study in vocabulary, critical reading assessment, grammar & writing skills. Therefore, I encourage parents to promote preparation as early as grade 10. Summer enrichment study classes provide preparation to strengthen test-taking skills.

Visit my website, www.marymargarethunt.com for the 2012 seminar schedule with test dates. The first seminar for January 28 SAT Test begins on January 7, 2012. For immediate questions, call 254-848-8040.